

Improving Mental Health Information Programme

IMHIP2004: who, where, when and why

When: 10 November 2004 from 9:30am - 3:15pm

Where: The Royal Society of Edinburgh, George Street, Edinburgh

Who should attend?

- Those who provide care to those with mental health problems (district nurses, health visitors, social workers, support workers, OTs, CPNs, psychiatrists, service managers, counsellors, psychologists, GPs and physiotherapists)
- Service users and carers
- Clinical effectiveness and audit folks
- IT professionals, information specialists and analysts
- Medical directors and public health specialists

Why you should attend

- To explore the aims and themes of the Improving Mental Health Information Programme
 - Raising awareness of the role of information in supporting care
 - Developing new information sets to support improved mental health care provision
 - Building an information-sharing culture
 - Supporting quality improvement, clinical governance and audit
 - Making currently collected data work harder
- To learn what others are already doing
- To develop a Mental Health Information Strategy for Scotland

How to register

- Fill in the accompanying application form and return by e-mail or post