Quality Indicator Profile for Mental Health

An Official Statistics publication for Scotland (Experimental)

Publication date: 17 September 2019

About this release

This release by Information Services Division (ISD), presents the 14 quality indicators that are currently available to inform the Quality Indicator Profile for Mental Health (QIPMH). The creation of this profile was set out in Action 38 of the Mental Health Strategy 2017-2027.

This release brings together previously published information collected by services and Health and Social Care organisations into a single report where users can gain an overview of Mental Health Services across Scotland. You can view the 14 indicators currently available on the Quality Indicator Profile page on our website.

Main Points

- There are six new quality indicators presented in this release. Two are shown below as infographics and a link to the source data is provided.

- In Scotland in 2017/18, 80% of people with a mental health problem agreed that people took account of the things that mattered to them.
