About this release

This release by Information Services Division (ISD) summarises how long people waited to start treatment for Psychological Therapies provided by NHSScotland, for the quarter ending June 2018.

Main Points

Based on the available data for the quarter ending June 2018:

- 17,273 people started treatment for Psychological Therapies in 14 NHS territorial Boards and NHS 24 which is an increase from the previous quarter (15,677).

- 3 out of 4 patients (76.3%) were seen within 18 weeks which compares with 78.4% in the previous quarter.

- One NHS territorial Board (NHS Greater Glasgow and Clyde) and NHS 24 met the standard of treating 90% of patients referred within 18 weeks.

- 6 out 7 (85.5%) people aged 65 and over were seen within 18 weeks. This compares with 87.7% in the previous quarter.
Background

Waiting times information for Psychological Therapies is still being developed. NHS Boards are working with ISD and the Scottish Government to improve the consistency and completeness of the information. Currently NHS Borders and NHS Orkney have data quality issues, please see the full report for the detail. The Scottish Government has set a standard for the NHS in Scotland to deliver a maximum wait of 18 weeks from a patient’s referral to treatment for Psychological Therapies from December 2014. The standard should be delivered for at least 90% of patients.

Psychological Therapies refer to a range of interventions, based on psychological concepts and theory, which are designed to help people understand and make changes to their thinking, behaviour and relationships in order to relieve distress and to improve functioning. The standard applies specifically to Psychological Therapies for treatment of a mental illness or disorder.

Scottish Government asked Healthcare Improvement Scotland to lead a programme of work to improve access to Psychological Therapies. ISD are a partner in this programme of work providing data, analytical and intelligence support working closely with NHS Boards.

Please see the Psychological Therapies Report for more information on the data quality.
